Dear Friends,

Offering all licensed members reasonably priced cover that is suited to their specific mountain sport activities is a top priority for the French Federation of Alpine and Mountain Clubs (Fédération française des clubs alpins et de montagne, FFCAM).

This goal can only be achieved through the members’ solidarity and through everyone’s prevention and safety efforts: we need to be vigilant and responsible when making decisions so that we can protect those who share our passion, especially young people just discovering the adventures that mountains have to offer.

However, it is necessary to take measures that, in the event of an accident, will minimise the consequences, both for third parties and for ourselves, which means purchasing appropriate insurance cover.

Although your civil liability is automatically covered by the insurance associated with your licence, I cannot emphasise enough the importance of the optional personal accident and emergency assistance benefits. Without them, you may be responsible for the cost of search and rescue missions, which can be very high.

Additionally, this insurance covers any injury suffered by the licensed member him/herself (such as medical and other similar expenses not covered by health insurance or a provident scheme, as well as prostheses), up to the maximum benefit amount, and provides for payment of benefits in the event of death or permanent disability. Enhanced personal accident (Individuelle accident renforcée, IAR) insurance offers higher benefit caps and broader cover (reimbursement of sporting goods, ski lift tickets and classes, a daily allowance, academic support, domestic help, and more).

Remember to purchase the “Worldwide” extended cover if you plan to participate in mountain sports outside Europe: Should repatriation be necessary, the cost of this insurance will seem like nothing...

Lastly, we ask you to be as cautious as possible so you can better protect your loved ones: you can take out additional cover, such as “Protection Plus”, which is offered by our broker Gras Savoye and will protect you under any circumstances.

Having the right insurance will allow you to engage in mountain and high-altitude activities with complete peace of mind. Remember, freedom, friendliness and sharing are all key values for spreading the Alpine Club spirit!!
